THE LIGISLATURE.

The Legislature will re-assemble tomorrow. The chief business of the session will be to complete and pass upon the Code. It will be remembered that the Committee appointed to revise the report of the Codifiers sat in this city some ten days after the adjournment last Summer and completed the revision of the report. It now remains for the two Houses to go over the work then examined by the Committee, and after passing upon it chapter by chapter, to enact the whole into one statute Some miscellaneous business will doubtless be transacted at this session. If we are not mistaken the question of locating the State capital was made the order of the day for the 15th—relating to which fresh and inviting topic we have had an interesting communi cating on our table for some days and will endeavor to give it to our readers

Our special from Lexington, Ky., (which should have reached us, but did not, in time for Saturday morning) indicates what many have all along claimed, yiz; that there is in all the rebel States a large and Important loyal element among the white people whenever and wherever it has sufficient assurance of protection to make itself known. The certainty of Grant's election emboldened this element in Kentucky even before the election; and we anticipate that in a few months after his inauguration and possibly before, there will be a very important growth of Republicanism in all the Southern States, among the whites, where none is so much as suspected now. The same development would have taken place in 1865 if the swift treachery of Johnson had not checked it. And never since has it dared show itself. When the head of the Ku Klux Klan is cut off at Washington next March the fourth, we shall see its body in the rebel States along the whites, and the never since has it dared show itself. When the head of the Ku Klux Klan is cut off at Washington next March the fourth, we shall see its body in the rebel States dwindle and die; and then we States dwindle and die; and then we think, just as soon as it becomes safe to be outspoken, a strong white accession will be made to the Republican strength in all the Southern States, nocratic newspapers and politicians have already begun on Gen. Grant the tactics they brought to bear on Andrew Johnson, as soon as Wilkes Booth made him President in 1865.

readers abything about the result of each one present stood with handker-our State election. A geutleman who chief to eyes, Mr. Church falteringly read the following:

THE LAST HOURS OF SEYMOUR. Receiving Election News at Utica. UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 4-4:23, A. M.

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 4—4:23, A. M.

Pursuant to instructions I came to Utica last evening and immediately obtained access to the suite of private parlors at the Butterfield House, occupied by Governor Seymour as his campaign headquarters. I found Mr. Seymour there, surrounded by forty or fifty leading Democratic politicians from New York, Washington and other parts of the country. The business was to be the receipt of the election returns, and a grand jolification over the election of Seymour and Blair, which no one present seemed to doubt. Several baskets of campaigne, some suspicious looking black bottles, some lemons, cigars, &c., flanked one side of the room, and a telegraphic instrument and operator occupied a prominent position near the east window. At 8 o'clock the instrument began to click and returns began to arrive. For a time all was breathless silence, Mr. Seymour sitting by the window attempting to appear unconcerned, but all the time twiddling his fingers, and tempting to spear unconcerned, but all the time twiddling his fingers, and working his face like a maiden awaiting a proposal from a shy beau. At last the clicking-cased and everybody shouted "Read!"

Sanford Church snatched the sheet from the operator and read as follows:

SQUAWKTOWN, Nov. 3.

Horatio Scymour, President elect. Squawktown gives you thirteen majority, which is a Damocoatic loss of colly situation. At this ratio, the said is "Then carry me home to my bearfield farm, and bury me where the violets blow, and write on my head-structure."

SQUAWRTOWN, Nov. 3.

Horatio Seymour, President cleet:
Squawktown gives you thirteen majority, which is a Democatic loss of only sixty-four. At this ratio the Union has certainly gone for you, altho' you did not go for the Union any to speak of. I congratulate your excellency on your election, and deem it only simple instice to say that the favorable result in Squawktown is due wholly to my superhuman efforts in your behalf. The Squawktown Postmaster is a foul-mouthed Radical, I will see you in Utica in a few days, (170, coll ci.) JUDGE SNODGRASS.

"Where's Squawktown?" Shouted all present, and Seymour asked with a sigh. "Who's Judge Suodgrass?" But before any question could be answered the operator's pencil began moving sgain and in a moment more Mr. Church read the following:

New Orleans, Noy. 3.

New Orleans, Nov. 3.

Horatio Seymour:—Our friends took possession of the polling places early this morning and all niggers, carpetbaggers and sboiltion poor whites have been kept from voting. A few of them had to be shot before they learned decency and seemed content to leave the matter of voting in the Lands of gentlemen. The result is a glorious Democratic triumph in Louisiana which we trust may secure your election.

MAYOR MONROS.
P. G. T. B. V. BEAUREGARD.

Here all present jumped to their feet and gave three lusty cheers for Seymour and victory. Seymour himself burst inte a hysteric laugh and said, "it is well." All present took a drink. The instrument clicked away and Church again read:

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 3. NEW ORLEANS, NOV. 3.

Louisville, Nov. S.

President Seymour:—Kentucky greets you with 80,000 majority. This of course elects you. Down with military upstarts and abolition tyranny.

PRENTICE.

Another explosion followed this, all Another explosion followed this, all drank round and the hilarity was overwhelming. No doubt was now entertained of a sweeping Democratic success. Sanford Chuch, August Belmont, Brick Pomeroy, Armstrong (editor of a Democratic paper in Onlo) and a score of others huddled around Seymour's chair and began urging their claims to a seat in the new cabinet, Horatic smiled benignly and responded: "God bless you, my children, but "my cabinet you cannot be. My constitutional advisers must be from the "South, the cradle of the Constitution and the nursery of statesmen."

But the telegraph was busy and Church again read;

TAMMANY HALL, Nov. 3.

Governor Seymour-The die is cas-be courts ordered the electio Governor Seymour—The die is cast. The courts ordered the election judges to refuse our bogus naturalization papers, and this ioses us 11,000 votes in Pennsylvania, The result is, judging from present returns, that Philadelphia goes for Grant by four thousand, and the State by 20,000. The infernal boys are already selling "Seymour Salt River tickets" on the streets, My head is a fountain of tears. I leave for Europe to-morrow as my wile's health requires a change of air. Address me at Jernsalem.

Booth made him President in 1855. Papers and men that a few days ago were fierce and coarse in their abuse of Grant are now fulsome in their praises.

These gentlemen are knaves and fools. Grant is not a Johnson nor a trator by any other name. We hardly expect that he will meet the wishes of every member of his party but we have no doubt he will maintain good faith in all his piedges and will carry out to complete success the general policy of the Republican party as enunciated in the late campaign.

The Register will refuses to tell its readers anything about the result of readers anything about the result of the success and while readers anything about the result of readers anything about the result of the success and while results of the success and while result of readers anything about the result of the success anything about the result of the success and the success anything about the result of the success and the success and the success anything about the result of the success and the dress me at Jerusalen

Neither has the Register given its readers any information about the vote in this State for President. It acknowledged the morning after the election that Grant was elected, but took care not to admit that West Virginia had been carried for him.
